FILMMAKERS

Michael David Lynch
Director/ Producer/ Cinematographer

Growing up in Ann Arbor Michigan, Michael found his love for cinema as a projectionist, getting an inside peek at all that cinema had to offer. He followed this passion to Chicago IL, where he studied film at Columbia College Chicago. It was here that he conceived the idea for Burden, a massive science fiction film of epic proportions that would give any big Hollywood blockbuster a run for it's money. After graduating, Mike headed for Los Angeles, where he hit the ground running, working on huge Hollywood movies such as "Inception" "Die Hard 4" "Ironman 2" and "Transformers 2". Ever determined to leave his own mark on the medium, he went on to produce several successful films including: "Drop" "Between Us" and "This Thing with Sarah." Today, he makes his long awaited feature film directorial debut with two incredible projects: "Dependent's Day" and "Victor Walk." Two very different films that cover very different territory, showing the versatility and heart of a talented director who is sure keep telling stories. He has had the privilege of collaborating with tons of amazing actors on Dependent's Day his debut feature narrative film where he served as Director, Writer, Producer, Cinematographer and editor. Dependent's Day recently won the Audience Award Narrative Feature Comedy at the Cinequest film festival on March 12th 2016 and Best Actress at the Hill Country Film Festival April 29th 2016. Victor Walk is a passion project for Director Lynch, having grown up looking up to Theo Fleury and having a chance to shed some light on a topic that too often goes over looked or swept under the rug.
