

Haida Gwaii

Tagline

Maybe we're not totally screwed.

Logline

Indigenous and settler inhabitants of famed archipelago Haida Gwaii restore a paradise to meet the challenges of the 21st century.

Short Synopsis

This beautiful, multi award-winning documentary set on the pristine Haida Gwaii archipelago relates how the distinct world view of this 14,000 year old society is co-mingling with progressive settlers to create a sustainable world that well may survive the challenges of the 21st century.

Long Synopsis

An inspiring multi award-winning documentary film about the inhabitants of Haida Gwaii, a remote archipelago off the Northwest coast of Canada that National Geographic recently named one of the "Must See Places in the World". As one of the only places in North America where natives actually outnumber and out vote non-natives, "Haida Gwaii: On the Edge of the World" profiles a unique community comprised of individuals from both groups who are all striving in different ways to undo the damage done by a century of reckless resource extraction, to stop the fleet of oil laden tankers targeting their sea lanes, and restore balance to the islands for the next generation. A powerful and hopeful story that by its end will make viewers want to rise up and protect not only one of the most beautiful and unique places on Earth but their own natural back yards as well.
