

Tagline

---

One human's death - Another human's bread

Logline

---

When a tv-sound engineer discovers a copycat kidnapper mirroring the true crimes being portrayed in a live tv-show, she helps a policeofficer from the past trying to locate the kidnapper while he goes viral.

Short synopsis

---

THREE interlocking stories connected through centuries by a single murder, converge to reveal a complex and tragic story of people making a living off other peoples demise, for the absolute entertainment of the nation, where the consumer is THE REAL VILLAIN.

Long synopsis

---

The soundengineer MARRIT works at a succesful TV-station about to broadcast the comeback of the vintage classic talkshow, 'NAILED WITH THE HAMMER', with the ironic ERIK HAMMER as host. The true crime podcast phenomenon, LOTUS, is the special guest of the night, and will show her true identity for the first time in public. As she enters the show and starts telling true-crime stories, a copycat killer stalks her phone, which she forgot while being mic'ed up by Marrit. Marrit discovers the horrific texts from the stalker, following a livestream video of him torturing a victim, mimicking Lotus' live stories. Marrit calls a policeofficer she has a history with, and flashbacks of the past starts materialising pieces to the puzzle until both past, present and future proves to be connected in a tragical and melancholy fashion. The death of one person will make the numbers of the show skyrocket, and the ultimate price that, will ultimately secure the ultimate payoff for everyone but the dead.