

In the small town of Feirg, a presence looms over its community as death and the five stages of grief stalk its town folks. Presently, Chris - a young child struggling with the loss of his beloved dog, encounters a mysterious man who empathizes with his grievance and offers to bring his dog back to life under one condition. Weirdered out by the encounter, Chris leaves the interaction to go on about his life as the mysterious man lurks around every corner and influences other individuals in the town on how they handle grief until Chris finally fulfills the one condition and brings his dog back to life with consequences.